

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

*“Stand, gentlemen, now in front of a woman,
for all the violence imposed on her.
For all the humiliations she has suffered.
For the body that you exploited.
For the intelligence that you have condemned her for.
For the ignorance that made you leave her.
For the freedom that you denied her.
For the mouth you shut, and the wings you clipped.
For all this,
stand, gentlemen, now in front of a woman.”*

-W. Shakespeare-

Our personal experience at “Centro Donna Lilith”

Last year for the P.C.T.O project we had a direct experience about this theme.

We talked about the different forms of violence and we participated in a contest for the realisation of a “murales”.

This image is the drawing that we made for the project, and represents the freedom of women to be able to become whoever they want.

In fact there are women that do works meant for man like fireman, astronaut, mechanic and officers.

IN CONCLUSION

Violence against women is unfortunately still a daily reality in fact there is a dedicated day. (25th november).

This date is an opportunity to reflect but we should always reflect, because in a well-structured society things like violence shouldn't exist.

It, beyond physical damage, leaves an inner suffering. A physical wound heals after a while, but an inner wound remains forever.

Violence of any kind is wrong and no one should be a victim of it.
